Cremation in Dallas-Fort Worth: 5 Tips for arranging an affordable cremation

More Texans are opting for cremation services as an end of life disposition choice today. Why? A number of reasons, from just wanting to save money on funeral costs, to simply not wanting the extravagance and fuss of a traditional funeral service. The bottom line is that choosing a cremation service can save you thousands of dollars on funeral expenses. If you want to arrange an affordable cremation in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, then the 5 tips below should help you conduct a dignified cremation for under $800.00.

#1 Make sure you compare cremation prices between DFW cremation providers

This may seem very obvious considering how we all compare prices when making consumer purchases these days. But when it comes to death care, so many people just go to a Dallas funeral service provider they are recommended to, or know, without thinking about how price competitive they are. Somehow it seems 'undignified' to be asking the question "how much does a cremation cost in DFW?" However, it is one tip that is guaranteed to save you money.

#2 Avoid corporate-owned Dallas-Fort Worth cremation companies

The funeral industry is the complete opposite of the corporate model of economies of scale and affordability. It is a known fact that corporate cremation companies, such as SCI's Neptune Society, are more expensive than many Mom & Pop funeral and cremation companies in Dallas-Fort Worth. It can save you money to find a local family-owned DFW funeral home that offers simple affordable cremation packages.

#3 Consider a direct cremation in Dallas-Fort Worth

A cremation with a service in the Dallas-Fort Worth area will still work out cheaper than a traditional burial, as savings can be made on the casket, cemetery plot and burial container. However, a direct cremation, which is cremation with NO service, will significantly reduce your overall funeral costs. Direct cremation in the DFW area can be obtained for under $800.00. If you opt for a DFW direct cremation, you can then conduct your own memorial service. This saves on the expense you would have paid the funeral home for.

#4 Arrange your own memorial service in DFW

Family-directed funerals are coming back into vogue. What does this mean? Simply that the family arranges the funeral services, as opposed to employing the services of a funeral director. If you arrange a basic direct cremation you can organize your own memorial service at a time and place convenient for all family and friends, plus you can personalize it in a way that only family can.

These days' families are opting to hold memorial services in a variety of locations. It does not have to be a place of faith or a funeral home, it can be held at a community center, a country club, a ranch or just about anywhere. Life celebration services are becoming more popular, so the memorial does not have to be a somber event.

#5 Do something personalized with the ashes

As cremation becomes more popular, so we are being presented with more choices as to what we can do with cremated remains. Cremated remains can be interred similar to a burial, however, there are lots of options that are cost-effective, yet enable you to do something unique and personalized. There is a whole array of keepsake urns and cremation jewelry, aside from many ash scattering opportunities.

It is easy to arrange an affordable cremation in Dallas-Fort Worth if you consider these simple tips. Deathcare need not be an expensive affair.
